OSOGBO—Osun state Police command yesterday paraded 23 suspects, including one Lawrence Dada who allegedly murdered a protester in Osogbo during the last nationwide protest against fuel subsidy removal.

Parading the suspects in Osogbo, Osun state Commissioner of Police, Mr. Olusegun Solomon, said the suspects were picked up in different locations in the state in the last three weeks.

He disclosed that Dada aka “The Law” with his friend, Tunde Ajiboye, while driving his car with number plate XG 109 AA on January 9, this year at Jolayemi junction in Osogbo met a road block mounted by labour strike protesters.

According to him, a quarrel ensued between them and the protesters where Dada Lawrence was said to have inflicted a deep machete cut on one Mojeed Wale Kareem's head during a free for all which eventually resulted in his death.

The Commissioner said the suspects had made useful information to the police while investigation was still ongoing.

Similarly, five suspects were also paraded for the alleged murder of an 80- year old, James Komolafe on his farm at Jagun village, Osun sate in December last year.

The Police boss recalled that the deceased with his son, Olagunju Komolafe, went to the farm at Jagun village where they saw one Ajibade Adeoye and Omoworare Adesoji felling trees in his farm.

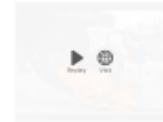

He said: "An argument ensued between them which was later settled. Thereafter, the deceased's son left for his farm but on his return to his father's farm he could not see his father and went back home to inform his elder brother, Wale Komolafe of the development.

"Search was conducted around the farm where the deceased was found dead in his pool of blood. Police investigations later revealed that the suspects used their Dorman sawing machine to cut the deceased in the face, killed him and hid his corpse in the forest where it was later Aregbasola should resign as the governor of the evil state call Osun. That is the world of ACN in other situation like this. He should respect diplomatic order and resign as he cannot protect his people.

every little thing u guys ask for them to resign, is dat democracy you were thought. u can criticise his govt but he has the mandate for 4yrs. Please allow them complete their 4yrs, criticise their actions and try drawing their attention towards what they should be doing and not calling for their resignation cos that will do the state or country no good

Most irresponsible comment ever read. Colins you are either naive or misciveous or even both. You have extend your ignorance to a point of daftness by suggesting an elected governor to resign over a calluos killing of an innocent man. Calling for resignation of public office holder is a legitimate right of anyone but must be carry out with rationality. If Mr Aregbesola must resign, Mr Jonathan must face death Panalty and Mr Fashola should equally be on his way to prison. Everyday particularly in Lagos and generally in Nigeria people get killed senselessly with motives that are questionable, yes, that is what you get in a country tha still operate a penal code of the colonialists. Our problems in Nigeria is multi facet and unnecessary call for resignation is not the solution. its the right time for Nigeria to weed a new path for the survival of meth -physical Nigeria now that the political structure is dead.
