YENAGOA— Bayelsa State Government, yesterday, said it will set up a task force to check the security challenges in the state.

The announcement came a day after suspected rival cult gang engaged in a gun battle which left four persons dead, among them a commercial sex worker, while several others sustained gunshot wounds.

The government said: "Report over the unfortunate death of a young lady hit by stray bullets due to the clash of two rival cult gangs yesterday (Sunday) in Yenagoa has just been brought to our notice."

Senior Special Assistant Media and Public Affairs to the Governor, Daniel Iworiso-Markson, in a statement, said "Upon further investigation, it was revealed that the other three persons who sustained serious injuries as a result of the cross-fire gave up “Government is set to unveil its Task Force on Security. This is in keeping with the earlier promise made by the Dickson administration that it will ensure a zero-tolerance to all forms of crime and criminality. Our Task Force on Security will comprehensively enforce this policy to the letter,” he added.

It will be recalled that the police authorities confirmed two persons dead and six arrested over the violent skirmishes involving rival cult groups alleged locked in supremacy battle.

It is nice that the government decided to form a task force to look into the security issues in the state but that will bring little comfort to the families of the victims of this senseless killings. What the families need to hear from the government is that the government is working to find and bring thr killers to justice. Those responsible need to be found, tried and if found guilty, punished severely. Promises of another task force (that will end up wasting the public money) will not make the public feel safe. Bringing the killers to justice will.

the way blood are shed in Nigeria you will think you are in the medieval period of history, with all the religious fervor all Nigeria has produced are blood suckers who are emboldened day in day out with false confidence because the judicial system has also become an accessory to these murders after the fact. the problem is that every time you shed innocent blood the whole country pay for it because God himself will avenge those blood himself. this is the reason why every time the false prophet says it is well with Nigeria, they are actually lying because there is no peace to wicked says the Lord. it will not be well with Nigeria until justice is done in these cases

Fools! will the task force substitute the need to charge policemen on their duty? Or do you want to waste money unnecessarily? The problem is that the Nigerian police who should checkmate crimes are the grade one criminals in the country. How can thief catch thief?
