LAGOS – Tragedy struck, weekend, at Tin-Can Island area of Lagos as two motorists reportedly lost their lives during a scuffle that occurred at the National Bus Stop, along the chaotic Oshodi-Apapa expressway.

Vanguard gathered that the motorists (names withheld) engaged in a bloody fight when one of them brushed the other's car during rush traffic hour on Friday morning.

Eyewitness told Vanguard that the motorist whose car was brushed got incensed, pulled out a jack knife from a naval officer, who was trying to make peace, and stabbed the other in the abdomen. The victim reportedly slumped and died.

Meanwhile, a group of onlookers who watched as the ugly incident unfolded was said to have been enraged and clubbed the assailant to death.

When Vanguard contacted the Police Public Relations Officer in charge of the Tin-Can Island Port, ASP Ihende Goddy, he confirmed the incident but said the command was investigating the matter.
