NSUKKA—A man who was identified by the police as Sunday Eze (Jnr) has reportedly matcheted his wife to death at the University town of Nsukka in Enugu State.

Eze, alleged to be a native of Agbani Nguru in Nsukka Local Government was said to have killed his wife following a slight misunderstanding he had with her.

Vanguard sources said at Nsukka that the suspect allegedly killed his wife on Tuesday night in the presence of their only child Onyebuchi Eze, 11. The suspect was alleged to have rebuffed pleas by the child not to kill his mother.

The kid who received a deep cut in his hand in attempt to prevent his father from killing his mother is a form five pupil of a primary school in the area.

The suspect was however said to have had a mental problem before the incident. It was alleged that the suspect had threatened to kill his wife each time they had any disagreement.

Police sources quoted the 11 year old boy as stating that his parents had quarrels that night before his father used his machet and killed his “mummy,” adding, “I rushed him and pleaded but he did not listen to me.

He stabbed my mother severally both on the head and legs and on seeing that mummy is dead, he asked me to go to his elder brother's residence, and tell them what has happened while he also moved to the nearby neighbours to inform them."

According to the police sources, Onyebuchi complied as directed by his father only for the assailant to escape into the bush for three days before he was caught by a search party in the community.

The search party headed by one Christopher Ejike Onah alias Papa Nsukka, was said to have apprehended the suspect after ransacking all the nearby bushes and villages.

He was said to have attempted to kill himself with a screw driver which gave him a very deep cut in the throat. before he was arrested on the third night, looking frail and haggard.

The suspect told Vanguard that his late wife was responsible for his mental problem even as he further claimed that she died during a scuffle with him on the fateful night.

“I was told by my diviner that my wife has a hand in my mental problem which causes me internal heat at intervals,” the suspect further told Vanguard.

Even the Catholic Church is askance at wedding couple in which one of them is mad. But today the young 'civilized' youths claim to be more civil than civilization itself. They claim they love each other beyond human descretion.

Sorry folks for 32 years we v bn telling you to go back to the nucleus African culture but money has become the chase wrongly which in the end makes all miserable and a failure hence the need to hearken to my call or alternatively start using the true spiritual name of the Creator called Maharaj Ji to take one from poverty and insecurity which is the root causes of all human problems

The exploitation in this country knows no limit. Everybody is taking on the next person to him. The police should not buy the dummy that the guy was mad. He was mad to kill his wife before their only child, he was mad to send the child to his uncles place to enable him disappear into the forest, he was mad enough to kill his wife but not to kill himself. I have and cant doubt the santity of marriage, but i am tempted to doubt some of our marriages that are contracted without the necessary ingredients. Can a man kill a woman he loves? I dont think so? Can a man make a child he loves motherless? I dont think so either? I would have been glad if the police can use this t send a very strong message to all the men of such thinking out there that gone are the days when you commit crimes in nigeria and please madness. The diviner or native doctor should be arrested and charged with accessory to murder cause if he or she had not told the man that the woman is responsible for this predicaments, he would not have killed her.

I am pained by the stress this child will go through in a country like ours were the government does not know their responsibilities. My condolence to the family fo the woman and the little child. I ignorant is a disease, if this has little knowledge or have awarness he would have spent his hard earn money to seek medical advise. I feel sorry for that woman in process to belong to married club, she paid for her dear life.

If she have left this good for nothing man and be a single mother, people will call her names.

even the eduated society has become educated illiterate with no flowing with highlighted ideals.

And also africa women need to learn how to depend less on their husband. And to take a stand when they are being abused by their husband, Not afraid to speak out or think about what name she will be called by others.

Remember you have only one life, nt created to be used as a punching bag

just for the sake and name of being married.

Until africa society treat women as person not as property you owned, there will be occurance of this kind of killing in every homes

And also women to support themselves instead of treating their fellow women who are victims of circumstance of life as a leper.

You are simply seeing the incident from the point of view of "if", forgetting that what transpires in the early stage of every relationship is sugar and honey - marriage or friendship. Can you see the future when all is well at the beginning? You have not seen nagging or troublesome, recalcitrant wives (the You-will-kill-me-today types); they can drag man into this kind of mess.
