Delta probes death of pregnant woman

BY EMMA AMAIZE

WARRI— DELTA State government has commenced investigations into the death of a pregnant woman, Mrs. Elo Oyoro, rushed to the General Hospital, Ughelli, November 25, last year, but who died due to alleged neglect and absence of a doctor.

However, Oghenejabor Iki-mi, counsel to the widower, Mr. Onome Joseph, told Vanguard, yesterday, that his client was not satisfied with the manner the Ministry of Health was handling the probe and would head to court.

His words: "I detailed Barrister Lord Ibordor to represent me. They got to the Central Hospital, Ughelli by 10.00 am but the investigating team, led by the medical director, Central Hospital, Warri, arrived by 12.00 pm, thus Joseph Onome was kept waiting for two hours".

....As women protest alleged killing of Indigenes by Fulani herdsmen

BY FESTUS AHON

UGHELLI—ABOUT 200 women from Uwheru and Ohoror communities, yesterday stormed the Ughelli North Local Government Area council's secretariat, Delta State in protest against the alleged invasion of their farmlands and killing of over 10 indigenes from the communities by Fulani herdsmen.

The women who started thronging the council's secretariat from about 10 am, alleged that three indigenes of the communities had been killed by the Fulani herdsmen within the last two weeks.

The women who chanted various songs displayed palm fronds and placards with bore inscriptions such as "herdsmen have taken over our farmlands", "we are afraid to go to our farmland for fear of being raped", "they have killed our husbands", amongst others, adding that many of the communities' women had been raped in the bush by the herdsmen.

Speaking on behalf of the protesters, one of the women leaders, Mrs. Rose Osiebe noted that attempt by youths in the community to accost the Fulani herdsmen had ended up in bloodbath.
