my take on this type of occurence is to station army establishments on the egde of the country. here you have terrorist running rings round the nation and our army live in the inner-city take Lagos for example Dordan and the one in V I, inner city, the one at suru-lere inner city the numerous ones at yaba inner-city the one at ikeja inner-city we the population now watch over them instead of them watching over us, in most country of the world army establishment are always on the city limits to effectively guide the teritory, move them to where they will be more effective. my little opinion.

Energies spent on the eradication of HIV/AIDS and Cancer should now be re directed to either Eradicating Islam, or giving it a Re orientation. people should not continue to suffer for the hallucinations of Late mohamed. enough is enough. it is now evident that islam is the greatest killer of humans. Hate me for speaking the bitter truth.

Its is still not known which people are responsible for the death of Kwara CP,so we can't say what their grievances are against the CP.but we all know bokoharam as licensed Bonafide soldiers of Mohamed,fighting to force down Mohamedic violent injunctions down our throat.since Buhari has failed 3 consecutive times to formally introducing it,by trying to be the president of nigeria. Hence the patience of the boys run out,in trying to islamise nigeria.with the post election violence,it is now a known fact that the supporters of Buhari are purely Bokoharam members.

PLEASE READ;

Mr. Habila Adamu and others, who suffered the brutality of the Boko Haram sect drew tears from the audience yesterday as they recounted their ordeal. Those who gathered at the National Christian Center, Abuja yesterday, venue of the press conference organized by the Christian Association of Nigerian-Americans (CANAN), were in shock, listening to the ugly experiences by some Christians in the hands of Boko Haram members. Former minister of Education, Dr. Oby Ezekwesili, a trustee of the organization, who shed tears after listening to their stories, told journalists that: "You almost feel a sense of abandonment for them, almost like they are invincible to the rest of us and that worries me. "We must get ourselves back to a drawing table and figure out who we really are, what are we, what have we become as a people and as a nation."

The former vice president of the World Bank's African Division said: "Is it right that a mother would watch her husband killed, her

How else can one describe a failed state? A state that no one sleeps with two eyes closed or walk freely as a citezen of his own country. A country where high placed traditional ruler like the Emir of Kano was brutally attacked, a state where commissioner of police was murdered like a fowl and investigations were beign made only in the pages of newspapers. A state where a mobile police commander and a divional police officer was wiped out in a twibkle of an eye, and countless of civilians. A state where a killer, assisinator walks bold in the street and voted (appointed) in as a member of the upper house. A state where the citezens have no protection in all aspect of life. Nigerian newspapers has become a story book of recount of deaths, making it obvious for the underaged to see it as a way of life, that any body can kill any body at any time. Last time was decomposing bodies of fifteen able bodied young men discoverd in a river somewhere in Anambra state, today is the story of 10 decompsing bodies of able bodied men in a borrow pit along owerri-portharcourt road

Mindless and needless deaths to achieve only what God knows. Meanwhile APC and ACN Lai muhammed are busy playing politics with this collateral damages that would soon consume Nigeria. Let us leave politics aside and collectively face this monumental monster or else....

Don't worry when we finally get the jihad president and he has succeeded in imposing the promised shariah on everyone, then he will rein in his mujar'deen and order them to sheathe their sword. Just endure it a lit more, Ndo! A'nkali or Y'ankuri!

I can understand that people like you have been mentally deranged. The form of government that we have today cannot unilaterally declare a Sharia state in Nigeria. Any president's decision other than the executive ones (dictating to his ministers, etc) would not hold water unless 2/3 voted for him. Unless you are saying that 2/3 of NASS members will vote for Sharia, it ain't going no where!

what we have in the NASS are neutered dogs that can't perform, they just want to fill their purses. Else what is a boko haram suspect still doing there?

It leaves me to wonder if 1/3 of hausas are boko haram. With all these killing of their members by JTF every day, they keep increasing.

Boko Haram can be dealt with by...youth development, youth development. And education.

Time for the North to face the fact that it has a youth problem....and tie time to sort it out is yesterday.

It is suicidal for the police at this time to have less personnels in their stations in some states in the north. What the nigerian police need is the means to protect themselves before they can protect nigerians and not some donations to their families after their death. My sincere sympathy to the police force, all those that lost their loved ones and the borno state. The elders of borno state should call their boys to order. The rate at which these boys go about killing people is giving me serious concern. How many more nigerians will have to die before the government wake up to their responsibilities? How many nigerians will have to die before the government takes the protect of lives and properties serious? TODAY IS YESTERDAY'S TOMORROW.

We have a wrong leader in place this time around otherwise what is it preventing the President to succumb to the pressure for call of National Conference , to discuss further viability of Nigeria or for how long shall we endure this horrible killings ?

I wish we had a govt. in Nigeria. Security is govt's most important responsibility. We're just living in a state of nature where live has become cheap, nasty, brutish and short. this undermines the essence of govt. in society, I wish we had a govt!

Do you have such attacks in the SW, or you don't have muslims in the SW? Or may be christianity should be eradicated cos you have kidnappers in the SE, SS, and E. Don't miss criminal cases with religious issues.

The boys are doing very well, at least they are reducing the number of those that will challenge the South in the future, this is unlike me to comment this way, but I feel that the North deserves every bit of what these boys are giving them

It is even shameful to hear that a police station with trained officers was attacked by ordinary abokis without training, I think all Police stations in ṭḥe North should be converted to JTF stations bcos ṭḥe police has shown Nigerians in so many occasions that it cannot handle security issues...for several months ṭḥe North has been unstable so I wonder if ṭḥe police officers were asleep when they were attacked.
