They chanted what again? And to think this incident happened on a Friday, their so called "holy day" for that matter, the day they will all go to their various mosques to shout those same words shouted by the gunmen before they attacked and kill innocent lives.... Yet they say it's a peaceful something... Fraudsters..

Nigeria is not a serious nation. Politicians and politics have succeeded in making nonsense of whatever little image there was the military left behind when they went back to the barracks.

There is no will anywhere whether political or individually on the part of the government at the local, state and especially at the Federal level to fight Boko Haram, what you have is governments at all levels who are making political score points out of the misery of the people who are affected by all these killings and maimings going on across the country while they and their demon fathers smile to the banks in and outside the country with the security votes they are setting aside for the very crises they have created for the very purpose in the first place.

Every human being with brains in their heads will see why the western World do not trust Nigeria enough to share intelligence. The problem of Boko Haram is self made, created by politicians to settle scores among themselves with unfortunate Nigerians as the collateral. No serious government will seat pretty while nuisance make caricature of its security forces but the reverse is the case in Nigeria.

What is Dasuki still doing as National Security Adviser?? The elders of Otuoke should caution GEJ to put his 2015 ambition aside to do the right thing about security and corruption which will automatically give him any chance for the Presidency in 2015 elections because as things are going, he may suffer the same fate of Aguiyi Ironsi to allow his deputy to take over and organize a Kangaroo election which he may eventually win.

My advise to GEJ is to sacrifice his 2015 ambition and summon Sovereign National Conference to discuss our future because majority of good Northerners can not accept to live with this animals any longer. The war BH is waging is not only to islamatize Nigeria but to grap power by all means because there is too much money at Aso Rock.GEJ, i wish the administration of this false structure called Nigeria should return to the regions as it was before 1966.
