A man (names withheld) has reportedly died as two others are in a critical state after they were allegedly flogged with charms by hoodlums at All Progressives Congress, APC, rally at Oworoshoki in Lagos.

This is contrary to earlier reports that two persons were allegedly stabbed at the rally held on Ifako playground, Oworoshoki, last Monday.

Vanguard gathered that trouble began towards the end of the rally, when a renowned politician allegedly dished out bundles of N1,000 notes to hired thugs.

According to reports, the sharing formula did not go well with the parties involved as they reportedly began to unleash terror on one another.

It was also learned that in the heat of the squabble, one of the warring parties allegedly used charms on another, causing the instant of the 33-year-old man.

It was gathered that but for the timely intervention of police officers from Oworonsonki Division, who stormed the scene, the crisis would have degenerated further.

However, a locally-made pistol was recovered at the scene after the officers chased the hoodlums.
