ADO-EKITI—AN auto crash, which occurred late last night at about 7:30p.m. in front of Ekiti State University, Ado-Ekiti, has claimed the lives six persons reportedly students of the institutions.

While eyewitness accounts said six people died, the Police Public Relations Officer, Ekiti, Mr. Alberto Adeyemi, who confirmed the development, said his men had recorded five casualties.

The eyewitness said that the crash was caused by some heavily drunk boys, suspected to be internet fraudsters, popularly called Yahoo-yahoo boys, who rammed into a mini-commercial bus conveying students from the campus with their car.

The witness said: "The yahoo-yahoo boys must have been heavily drunk. They drove carelessly and collided with the commercial bus. Six people died on the spot, while one of them is in a critical condition.

"Officers of Federal Road Safety Corps, FRSC, have taken the corpses to the morgue."
