AYAKOROMO—SUSPECTED pirates, Monday night, shot dead a woman and her son at a fishing camp along Ekologbene creek of Ayakoromo community, Burutu Local Government Area of Delta State.

The remains of the victims identified as Mrs. Anetorofa Morkor and her son, Doutimi Asaba, were brought to the community in a speed boat.

Sources at the community told Vanguard that the hoodlums invaded the camp in an attempt to rob the fishermen and women, but ended up killing the victims following brawl with one of them.

Giving details of the incident, one of those fishing at the camp stated that the hoodlums sneaked into the camp and pointed a gun on her head, while barking on her to give them her cash and other items.

She said: "While I was being frisked, others went to an adjoining house where the victims were sleeping. Angered by the way his mother was being manhandled, the son engaged the hoodlums in a brawl, which resulted to both of them being shot."

The victims; every time.

On how the remains of the victims were discovered, an indigene of the community, Lokiri Preye, said: "When the news filtered into the community that hoodlums were attacking a fishing camp, the community mobilised to the camp only to discover the remains of both victims."

Efforts to speak with the state's Police Public Relations Officer, DSP Andrew Aniamaka, were fruitless.
