

Police arrest native doctor for murder in Ebonyi

1 THE husband of a 32-year old woman, Mrs Juliet Nkwegu, and a native doctor are in police net in Ebonyi State over the death of the woman, who the husband accused of complicity in the loss of his motorcycle.

It was gathered that the man, Mr Ejike Nkwegu, at Nkalaha, Onuebonyi Echera, in Ikwo Local Government Area of Ebonyi State, accused his wife of complicity in the loss of his motorcycle and forcefully took her to a native doctor to use magical means to unravel the wife's involvement in the stolen motorcycle.

A Police source disclosed that "when they got to the native doctor's house, the voodoo priest didn't use the magic mirror, but rather prepared a concoction for the woman to drink, which he said would make her confess.

"Sadly, after taking the mixture, she could not confess, but rather started having stomach upset, vomiting and subsequently died at the native doctor's shrine."
