activities around New Benin area in Benin City were crippled for several hours yesterday, following a clash between officials of the state Public Works for Volunteers, PUWOV, committee and commercial bus drivers, leading to the death of one of the drivers, with several others wounded.

At press time, one of the injured was said to still be in a coma in an undisclosed hospital, while others with minor injuries were treated and discharged.

One of the operational buses of PUWOV was set ablaze by the angry commercial drivers and their conductors.
