

Man stabbed to death in Ekiti

By Rotimi Ojomoyela

A middle aged man, Sunday Olorunleke, was, yesterday, found dead in his house at Abe Abe area of Ado Ekiti.

The deceased, said to be a commercial motorcyclist, was found lying in the pool of his own blood after he was allegedly stabbed by yet to be identified persons.

Sunday Vanguard gathered that the man was killed after his wife and children had gone out and only him was at home.

Neighbours said the incident might have happened between Thursday and Saturday because he was still seen in the neighborhood on Thursday afternoon.

According to them, the wife of the deceased put a call across to them on Thursday when she could not reach her husband on phone and they informed her that they saw him that day. The wife was said to have arrived Saturday morning and met the doors risk arrest.

closed, and she had to break into the apartment with the assistance of the people, where she found her husband's corpse on the floor. They called on the security agents to investigate the killing.