A final year student of the Cross River University of Technology, CRUTECH, Felix Egot was on Thursday afternoon hacked to death by gunmen near the SUG secretariat in the school premises.

An eyewitness told Vanguard that Felix assailants came in through a bush path as some of “their men” were also on ground to monitor the victim who was shot and also severed his throat. The eyewitness said: “The assailants numbering about five came into the school premises from a community behind the school, laid wait for their victim before striking. “Immediately they saw him, they went for him and shot him severally, after he fell to the ground they approached him and severed his neck and throat with machetes probably in a bid to take off his head.
