

In cold blood!

Continues from page 23

right hand.

According to report, trouble started when the suspect demanded that the deceased willed all his properties to her, a position the man was against, arguing that his daughter from his previous marriage must have a share of his properties.

The then state police Commissioner, CP Edgal Imohimi, directed Crime Scene Detectives from the homicide section of the SCID Pantti Yaba and Forensic experts to the scene to aid in the investigation.

In Ogun state, on

Stella Peter (stabbed her husband to death in Surulere

January 19th, 2020, a 40-year-old man, Olanrewaju Bamidele, allegedly beat and stabbed his wife, Adenike, to death, following a misunderstanding between the couple at the Bisodun village, Ofada, in the Obafemi-Owode Local Government Area of the state.

Bamidele used a big stick to beat his wife to a state of unconsciousness, after which he used a screwdriver to stab her in the head, resulting in her death.

It is obvious that when a union becomes hellish it is advisable to take a walk and live than committing murder or becoming a sacrificial lamb.

Which was why last week Chike Eze, asked the Customary Court of Appeal in Lagos state to dissolve his marriage before he kills his wife.

Eze who filed a petition before the court, said there is no more love between he and his wife Rachael, and he wants their marriage annulled as soon as possible.

Appearing before the court on Monday February 10th, Eze prayed the court to dissolve his marriage to Rachael as the dissolution will "save him from committing murder". According to him, she has not given him peace in the last two years

Eze told the court. "If I should retaliate, I will kill her. I don't want to kill her, so that I will not be charged to court for murder. The best option is for the court to end our marriage so that we can go our separate ways. She always hits me with dangerous weapons which inflict wounds on me, she fights and rains curses on me every day. She once deflated my car tires and tore my clothes to pieces on several occasions".

"The last time, she picked up a standing mirror and threw it at me. The mirror landed on me and caused severe injuries on my leg. I have several scars on my body as a result of her assault on me," he told the court.

In her defence, Rachael denied all the allegations and accused her husband of infidelity. The case was later adjourned to a later date.

Maryam Sanda and her late husband