

Woman, 25, stabs boyfriend to death over abortion

A 25-year-old lady, Onyinye Chime, has been arrested by police operatives in Anambra State for allegedly stabbing her 29-year-old boyfriend, Eleyi Azubuike, to death with a kitchen knife for suggesting abortion to her.

The command's spokesman, SP Haruna Mohammed, who disclosed this in Awka, yesterday, stated that the incident, which occurred at Ochiagha Street, Nkpor in Idemili North Local Government Area of the state, was reported on September 2.

He stated that following the report, police detectives attached to Ogidi Division went to the scene and met the deceased in a pool of his blood.

He stated that the operatives immediately rushed him to Iyi Enu Mission Hospital, Ogidi.

He said: "However, the victim was confirmed dead on arrival by the medical doctor," he said, adding that his remains were deposited at the hospital mortuary for autopsy.

According to Mohammed, a careful observation on the deceased's body showed a stab on his chest, while a blood stained kitchen knife was also recovered at the scene.

He stated that police learned that the deceased impregnated the suspect and wanted her to abort the pregnancy.

He stated that it was further learned that the suspect declined the option for an abortion and demanded some money for her upkeep.

Mohammed stated that her refusal for abortion resulted in a scuffle between them during which she allegedly stabbed the man to death.
