

Liquor seller stabs customer to death in Osun

September 13, 2021

By Shina Abubakar

A liquor seller identified as Mumini Olanipekun was on Monday arrested by the Osun police authority for stabbing a customer to death after an argument.

It was gathered that Mumini stabbed his customer, identified as Wale to death on Sunday, September 12, at night at Janta area, Ifon-Orolu after an argument between them.

An eyewitness, Sina Adeosun disclosed that many customers were drinking and discussing various issues including football and politics when the two started shouting at each other.

“The incident happened around 8pm or thereabouts, there were many people around the shop drinking and discussing various issues.

“Everyone is engrossed in their business until sudden noise between Mumini and Wale. They both refused entreaties to stop fighting.

READ ALSO: Child Trafficking: Police not willing to release our son to us, parents of kidnapped boy allege

“Suddenly, Mumini took a baron wine bottle break it on the floor and stabbed his victim on the chest, neck, and stomach. Wale was bleeding profusely and was rushed to a hospital in the town but was said