

Man kills mother with cutlass, cuts son's genital

A man, identified as Amadi Alozie, has been apprehended by youths in Umudosi, a community in Obingwa LGA of Abia State, for allegedly killing his mother with a cutlass.

He is also being held for allegedly cutting the genitalia of his son for suspected ritual purposes.

The Umudosi indigene had allegedly pounced on his little son and cut his genital, which made the boy scream and attracted Mrs. Alozie, the mother of the suspect, who rushed in to know why her grandson was crying out.

But on noticing that his mother had found out his evil act, the suspect was alleged to have immediately drawn a dagger which he used to inflict deep cuts on his mother, which resulted in her death.

The son who was attacked by his father has been rushed to the hospital.

After attacking his mother, Amadi Alozie tried to escape but was apprehended by youths of the community, who handed him over to the police for investigation and prosecution.

The ugly development has thrown the community into confusion about what pushed the young man into such crimes.

When contacted, the Public Relations Officer of Abia State Police Command, ASP Maureen Chinaka, said: "We have such reports at Eastern Ngwa Divisional Headquarters. However, the victim has been rushed to the hospital, the suspect is in custody, and investigation is ongoing."
